Jonathan Micklos

Software Engineering Manager @ Bellevue, USA

2024

Performance Review

Paul Wright • Software Engineering Manager

Submitted 2025-03-02

Rationale for the performance rating Jonathan received.

Jonathan was too new to the company to be calibrated for his performance in 2024. As a result he received a rating of Too New to Evaluate. Nevertheless he ramped effectively and delivered solid impact on Countdown and helping to drive the strategy for our 3p login friction in 2025. I appreciate his hard work and look forward to more impact and collaboration together in 2025!

What impact did Jonathan achieve in 2024 relative to their goals? Include impact achieved, progress against business goals, and contributions to efficiency initiatives, and building internal community as part of the impact assessment.

See self review.

How well did Jonathan support their team and enable them to achieve impact?

Reference your observations, Performance@ manager feedback (scores and written) and Meta People Management Skills. Include examples.

See self review.

Highlight 1-3 strengths Jonathan demonstrated. Use the Career Expectations Explorer to help you describe how well their actions align with expectations or skills.

Jonathan is able to diagnose and set up processes to solve operational issues and gaps. He should continue to build/scale these practices through his team and make sure that they are driving to hitting business goals and improving the team execution.

Jonathan has ramped quickly and effectively in the auth/login domain and is now driving or collaborating on strategy with peers on other teams and XFN.

How can Jonathan increase their impact? Describe 1-2 areas where they can grow or improve. (Recommended minimum: 150 words) Use the Career Expectations Explorer to help you describe growth or improvement areas.

Jonathan must make sure to address problems on the team that led to low Pulse scores in some areas and improve the overall experience for those on his team and make sure to retain his high performers. Particularly building meaningful trust with his team and making them feel supported and that they have sufficient opportunities for impact and clarity on their expectations.

Jonathan should continue growing and improving relationships with XFN. There were concerns about collaboration and effectively using DS that were identified and addressed promptly. We should continue building these relationships as they are a critical part of success at Meta.

Jonathan has an opportunity to grow his own scope with a larger team, including through hiring. Jonathan should make sure that we hire the right people and that all new team members are ramped effectively and quickly.
